Claim New Mobilization is Only For Purpose of Relieving Those On Duty But May Fear Invasion

GERMANS REPORTED MASSING ON FRONTIER

Washington, Jan. 20.—(By United Press)—Swiss Minister Ritter, acting on instructions from his home government today issued orders to all Swiss consuls throughout America that all reservists of the Swiss corp leave for mobilization immediately. At the same time Minister Ritter was apprised of these orders he was advised that three additional Swiss army troops would be mobilized on January 24.

Dr. Ritter said that his government did not fear hostile moves by the belligerents on either side. The new troops are to relieve those who have been in mobilization camps for some time. London dispatches recently told of large troops of German soldiers massing on the Swiss frontier. Switzerland, however, does not fear any violation of neutrality.

More Wild Turkeys Placed On Mountains

Total of Sixteen Have Now Been Placed in Clearfield County

State Game Protector Hummel, today placed two fine wild turkey gobblers in Kennedy park game reserve yesterday. The birds were sent here by direction of the State Game Commission. These two turkeys made a total of sixteen placed in the Kennedy Park preserve within the past few weeks.

In addition to these turkeys a flock of five were put out on McGarvey ridge with Mr. Matthews, who agreed with the Game Commission to look after them during the winter.

Another flock of ten fine turkeys were sent to Ed Thompson at Bower and he will give them every care until the winter is over and they are able to provide for themselves, when they will be released in the woods of that section.

Clearfield county is on the Game Commission's list for ten more turkeys and these will be located in some other section of the county just as soon as they can be secured and sent here.

Opening Immense Coal Operation Near Here

Two Veins Will be Mined From Under Ringgold and Owens Farms

The new coal operation to be located on the old Ringgold and Owens farms on the hill back of Clearfield creek was started this week, quite a force of men under Superintendent Ross Lambert being engaged in the work.

The new company which is composed of T. Larry Eyre, of Chester; Clark Bros., of Glen Campbell and A. M. Liveright of this city, has leased the coal under the Ringgold, Owens and McGow farms and it is said will put in the largest operation in this section of the county.

The siding from the Pennsylvania railroad used by the late Henry Liveright in operating the top vein in this territory will be repaired and placed in commission to handle the coal from this operation. The lease under which the company will operate calls for the two remaining veins of coal in these hills and it is the purpose of the company to open and operate both veins at the same time. The lower vein will be operated from a drift and the other by means of a slope or incline.

It is also the intention of the company to erect a number of houses on the Ringgold farm to accommodate their men.

Progress Interviews Mottorn's Counsel

Raymond E. Brown is Chief Figure in Fight For Boy's Life

Raymond E. Brown, Esq., of Brookville, the attorney who defended Ward Mottorn, the Jefferson county boy whose sentence to death by electrocution has attracted state wide attention and may result in Pennsylvania abolishing the death penalty, was an interested onlooker at the doings in license court this week.

While here Mr. Brown discussed his plans for the saving of his client's life with a representative of the Progress and stated that a bill to abolish the death penalty would be introduced in the legislature at Harrisburg on Monday and a strenuous fight made to have it passed.

The Governor and Board of Pardons are on record as being in favor of this move and Mr. Brown feels sure the law will be passed and the death penalty superseded by imprisonment for life.

He has enlisted the aid of many newspapers and other powerful influences throughout the state in his fight and will attend the sessions of the legislature while the bill is pending and will address the committee in charge of the measure when a public hearing is had.

Alleged Murderer is Held For Court Trial

Commonwealth Expects to Prove Cherovala Killed Abe Horn

The habeas corpus hearing in the case of Ralph Cherovala, charged with the murder of Abe Horn at DuBois, October 21st last, was concluded yesterday afternoon. At the close of the Commonwealth's testimony, Attorney Woodward for the defense, moved that the prisoner be discharged for lack of evidence. The Commonwealth made strenuous objection to this motion and Judge Bell decided that he would hold the prisoner in the sum of $2,000 bail to answer to the charge at the coming term of criminal court.

Cherovala was unable to furnish the requisite amount of bail and was taken to jail by Sheriff McCluskey.

Five in Room Too Many For East End Woman

Action in Divorce Discloses Bad Housing Conditions. There

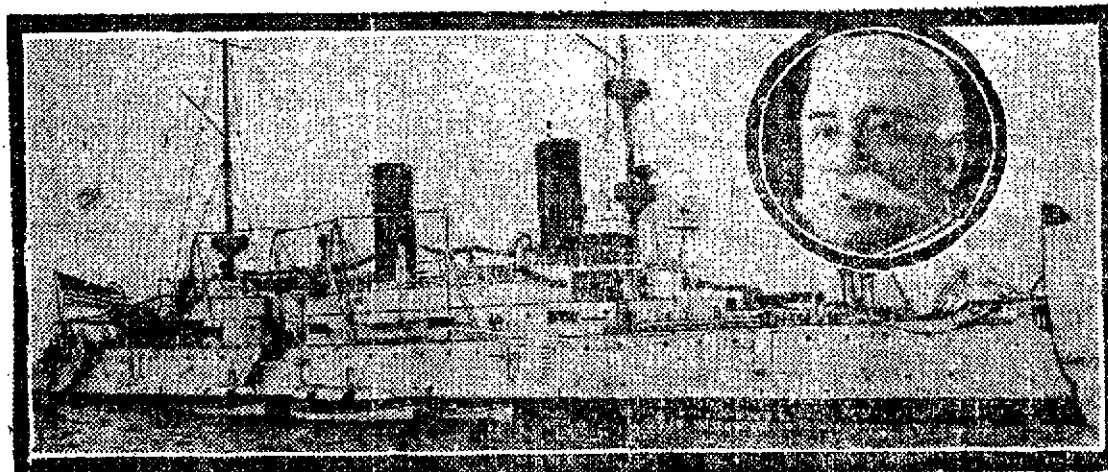

Tenement house conditions on New York's East Side don't have much on some East End houses if one were to judge from the complaint of a bride of little more than a year from that section filed in Prothonotary Moore's office this morning.

In the case mentioned the woman, who was married in August 1915, asks for a divorce from her husband on the ground that she was forced to leave his bed and board because he insisted on her sleeping in the same room with three other men, without a screen or other protection.

The injured wife not only asks for a divorce but support for herself and six months old child.

"YOU MAY FIRE WHEN YOU ARE READY, GRIDLEY"

This is the Olympia, on which the greatest American admiral, who died Tuesday in Washington, won his fame when he said to Captain Gridley, "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley." Gridley's fire opened the attack on the Spanish squadron off Manila, and it was followed by the destruction of eleven Spanish ships and the capture of the forts. The Philippine Islands were thereupon won to the United States.

Wells was caught at Huntington, Ind.

SAVED LIVES OF THOUSANDS

Tessie McNamara, telephone switchboard girl at the Cyprian Car and Foundry Company plant, Kingsland, N. J., which blew up last week, might have run away when she saw flames issuing from one of the houses near a pile of shells. Instead, she telephoned each of the thirty-seven buildings where thousands of men were at work. "Run!" she said. She worked till pieces of exploding shells began to fall through the roof of the building she occupied. When the last call was made she fainted and was carried out by the firemen.

PEACE WORKERS IN CONFERENCE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—In response to a call of the American peace society an open conference of peace workers met at the Raleigh hotel here today to consider a definite program for international reorganization designed to secure a lasting peace at the conclusion of the present war. One of the plans considered was that proposed by Dr. James Brown Scott, official adviser to the state department and president of the American Institute of International Law. This plan calls for the setting up of judicial and conciliatory machinery for the settlement of international disputes on the lines proposed already by the American peace society, and indicated by the deliberations of the two Hague tribunals of 1899 and 1907.

OPPOSE DUTY ON SAMPLES

New York, Jan. 20.—The American Importers' Association has lodged a strong protest with the Treasury department against the order directing customs officers to collect duty on samples of merchandise, regardless of the condition in which they were imported. The department has fixed tomorrow as the date for the new order to come into effect. Heretofore the samples of specified widths and lengths have been allowed entry duty free. The importers claim that the new ruling will work an unjust hardship on the trade.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

"STEALING NEWS"

New York, Jan. 20.—News pirates feasted this week on United Press cables from South America containing first news of the German commerce raider. In this four days' orgy Hearst's "International News Service" used the United Press cables in furnishing evening papers even to such obvious details that identity was certain, but to clinch the proof the United Press on Wednesday changed the name Yarrowdale to Yannondale.

Hearst's New York Journal printed the United Press stories without taking the trouble to rewrite them. They were identical, even to a typographical error in the story taken from the New York World, a United Press client. The New York Globe and the Boston Globe, Associated Press clients had the stories verbatim.

Investigation by the United Press disclosed the fact that the Associated Press did not tamper with the United Press cables or line in any way, but it did suffer a severe "beating." This was the first big demonstration of the United Press' excellent service in South America.

The United Press this week had the first news and furnished the stories of the great sea war to their clients hours ahead of the other agencies.

Dewey Laid To Rest With the Highest Military Honors

Governmental Machinery Stops For Brief Respite in Honor of Hero of Battle of Manila Bay

BUSINESS INSTITUTIONS SHOW RESPECT

Washington, Jan. 20.—The last tributes of respect were paid to Admiral George Dewey today. President Wilson, Secretary Daniels and other government officials, middies, jackies, society and civilians joined in the impressive ceremonies which began when "taps" were sounded at Arlington cemetery. At ten o'clock private services were held over the late admiral's body at his residence.

The body borne on a flag escorted by Annapolis Cadets and other military attaches was taken to the capitol and placed in the rotunda where the public might view the body. Chaplain Frazier of the Olympia, fighting parson, who was with the Admiral at Manila read the eulogy.

At noon nineteen cannons in this city were fired and other cannons throughout the country took up the farewell. From the capitol the funeral cortege moved up the streets of Washington to the city of the dead across the Potomac — Arlington National cemetery where the flag was sounded for the last time over the body. All government department offices closed today and Congress adjourned in honor of the American admiral. All private stores were closed for one hour and as the funeral cortege travelled the streets of Washington all street car traffic was suspended.

THE WASTE BASKET

There is a paper famine in this country, your individual help is needed to stop it. If you will watch this little box every day we will try to tell you how you can do that. We used to import 50 per cent of the rags and old paper used in making news paper, wrapping paper, writing paper, cardboard, all kinds of paper. The war has stopped that supply. In consequence, paper prices have gone up, in some instances 400 per cent.

Retail stores can help by posting notices asking customers not to insist on having parcels wrapped up if they can be conveniently handled otherwise. Customers can help by acting on the suggestion.

Housewives can help by saving rags and waste paper, bundling them up and selling them to the junk man. Tomorrow we will tell you some of the kinds of rags most in demand, and why.

Value of The Newspaper To The Advertiser

The following are the most important reasons for the value of the newspaper as an advertising medium:

1. It carries the news and is therefore always in DEMAND by ALL that read.
2. It reaches the people often—twice EVERY DAY.
3. Timely announcements can be made within a few hours from the time the advertiser conceives the idea, and while the interest of the public is still warm.
4. It concentrates the advertising in a certain locality and thoroughly.
5. The newspaper is the ONLY advertising medium that goes into the home. And the advertiser knows that it is wanted there because it is bought and paid for. The only advertising medium that stands a hundred percent chance to be read.

The morning paper reaches the home early in the day—before the family starts to do the day's buying—and the advertisements are consulted just when they are likely to serve as guides for the day's shopping. The evening paper, on the other hand, reaches the readers at the time when the day's work is done and when they have the most time and the inclination for reading.

"LOVE NEVER DIES"

There is always public interest in matters concerning the stage, and the announcement that "Love Never Dies" the Bluebird Photoplay to be exhibited at the Opera House today relates to the romance of a dancer at the Paris Grand Opera House will carry an interest beyond the ordinary. Ruth Stonehouse plays the role of a girl who, from childhood, had expressed her greatest delight in dance. With her boy sweetheart playing "Spring Song" on his violin, the girl would dance all day when other children would be indulging in the games and sports of childhood. The little sweethearts were finally torn apart by cruel fate, only to meet again in later years under circumstance that formed the basis for an interesting picture-story of force and abiding charm. Franklin Farnum, Kingsley Benedict, Mrs. Witting, Wm. Canfield, Helen Wright, and Wadsworth Harris support Miss Stonehouse in unfolding the romantic tale.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 21, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John 1, 35-51
Memory Verses, 36-37—Golden Text
John 1, 43—Commentary Prepared by
Rev. D. M. Stearns.

One of the wonderful and most interesting things in this first chapter of John is the many different names of the Lord Jesus. In this respect it is somewhat like Rev. 1. He is called the Word of God, the Word made flesh, the Son of God, the Son of Man, the Lamb of God, the Messiah, the King of Israel, Jesus of Nazareth and other names, and each one bears a different revelation of Him to our souls. Let our hearts cry ever, "That I may know Him" until we can say from the heart, "Yes, He is altogether lovely; this is my Beloved and this is my friend." (Phil. 11, 10; Song v. 10). When we are fully occupied with Him all else will seem different. As John cried the next day, "Behold the Lamb of God!" two of John's disciples followed Jesus, and when He turned and said, "What seek ye?" they replied, "Where dwellest thou?" To which He answered, "Come and see." This led to probably many hours with Him, for it was about the tenth hour (verses 35-39), which was not, as in the margin, two hours before night, but, as we count time, 10 a. m.

It is easily proved by John xix, 14, where, at the sixth hour, which must have been our 6 a. m., Jesus was still before Pilate, that John uses Roman time as we still do. Matthew, Mark and Luke use Jewish time, counting from 6 a. m. (Roman time) as the beginning of the day, so with them the third hour would be our 9 a. m., the sixth hour our 12 noon, and so on. Jesus was crucified at the third hour Jewish time, or 9 a. m. Roman time and our time. The darkness began at the sixth hour and continued till the ninth (Jewish time) or noon till 3 p. m. our time, when He died (Mark xv, 25, 33, 34; Matt. xxvii, 45, 46; Luke xxiii, 44). He met the woman at the well at 6 a. m. or 6 p. m. (John iv, 6), not at noon. Just remember that John counts the hours of the day as we do. What our Lord talked about in this interview we may imagine from the previous chapter (Luke xxiv), where we read of His conversation on the way to Emmaus, and in the upper room that same evening. We know that one of the two men on this occasion was Andrew, and we may safely conclude that the other was John himself (verses 40-42), for the evangelists have a way of not mentioning their own names when they are specially in the event.

We may also easily imagine that John found his brother James as quickly as Andrew found Simon. Are we as eager to bring others to Him, and does our talk about Him lead others away from ourselves to Him, as John's "Behold the Lamb of God" did? Is our motto "He must increase, but I must decrease" (John iii, 30). The next day Jesus went Himself to find Philip of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter, and said to him, "Follow me." I cannot tell you why He sought Philip and went Himself to do it, but I am glad that He ever sought me, though I fear that He has occasion to say to me, as He did to Philip after those three years, "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me?" (John xiv, 9). We all seem to become acquainted with Him so slowly. Oh, how patient He is with us. His "Follow Me" to Philip (verses 43, 44) makes us think of His resurrection word to Peter in chapter xxi, 19, 22, and the application to us is so helpful.

Philip soon found a friend, saying to him, "We have found Him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." With a disdainful word concerning Nazareth Nathaniel was persuaded to come and see for himself, and soon he was heard exclaiming, "Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God; Thou art the King of Israel" (verses 45-49). Perhaps the word of Jesus, "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee," had something to do with his confession. Only He who knoweth our down-sitting and uprising and all our ways could say such things to any one (Ps. cxxxix, 1-4). It will help us greatly if we remember that we have to do with Him who knows us so thoroughly and to whom all things are naked and open. Our Lord's next word to Nathaniel, "Thou shalt see greater things than these," I have often taken to myself as I have seen many of the wonderful things He has wrought for us and through us, and then have I pleaded again His words in Jer. xxxiii, 3.

The last verse in our lesson, which is an evident reference to Jacob's dream and vision at Bethel (Gen. xxviii, 12), makes me think that perhaps under that fig tree Nathaniel had been meditating upon this very thing, else why should our Lord refer to it? If my supposition is right, it is a confirmation of that which comes into your mind, every one of them. Only in this gospel is this man mentioned by this name, but he is supposed to be the Bartholomew of the other gospels, as he is always mentioned as such with Philip (Matt. x, 3; Mark iii, 13; Luke vi, 14). The last mention of him is in John xxi, 2, where he is seen as one of the seven.

A Voyage On The Ship "Economy" Over Waves of White Goods

White Sales Will Soon Occupy the Attention of The Shopper. Bon Voyage to All

With mines and U Boats acting up, This much consoleth me: Since I can't go to sea to sail, I'll go to sale to see.

New York, Jan. 19.—If you still have a little money left after Xmas and New Years don't worry, you won't have it after the January white sales.

In nautical tactics they speak of trimming the sails but in shopping tactics it is the sales that trim you. Fortunately however as you note the set of washable satin chemise in the privacy of your boudoir mirror you have the consolation of knowing that they trim you in more ways than one. January white sales have become an established custom in all the best shops as well as furniture sales in August. I don't quite see how they have the face to call them white sales anymore however. The daring cut of some of the newest lingerie has certainly caused a blushing pinkness to prevail and the alleged white sale is no longer pure white or pure white.

Things are even beginning to look a bit black for the white sale. What with all the present craze for black Chantilly lingerie, nobody would ever be afraid to go to bed in the dark if it was in one of the exquisite new black Chantilly nighties. They are almost as light as they are dark anyway, if not more so.

A streak of yellow appears often on the purest silk combinations and mauve, cerise, and Copenhagen disrupt the pink perfection of many a combination and chemise.

For those that have pink silk yearnings and only pink cotton earnings the pink batiste lingerie this season is really lovely. I saw a bird of a pair of pink wash crepe pajamas dotted all over with blue birds and a pink crepe nightie covered with blue and white butterflies that was a decidedly fly little garment.

The white sales not only offers covering for your back but for your bed and board as well.

The linen sheets, hemstitched, embroidered, monogrammed and inset with laces are marked down sufficiently to tempt the tightest of tight wads and as for the table linen well no one can resist it.

Either your table linen must be chastely and elegantly plain or it must be profusely and lavishly ornate. You can see that at the very first glimpse at the white sales.

The war time Penelopes in Belgium and France are busy turning out gossamer laces and embroideries while their war lords are away. The results are table cloths, doilies, lunch cloths, napkins and luncheon sets that are fairy like in their fragile beauties. Over colored cloths of gleaming satin these lace and embroidery works of art show to advantage at luncheons and dinners, carrying out a set color scheme. Just to carry the dolling up of the festal board a step further, centerpieces of gold or silver gauze heavily embroidered in gold or silver threads are a brand new conceit.

For more conservative and dignified

THE WASTE BASKET

There is a paper famine in this country, your individual help is needed to stop it. If you will watch this little box every day we will try to tell you how you can do that. We used to import 50 per cent of the rags and old paper used in making news paper, wrapping paper, writing paper, cardboard, all kinds of paper. The war has stopped that supply. In consequence, paper prices have gone up, in some instances 400 per cent.

Retail stores can help by posting notices asking customers not to insist on having parcels wrapped up if they can be conveniently handled otherwise. Customers can help by acting on the suggestion.

Housewives can help by saving rags and waste paper, bundling them up and selling them to the junk man. Tomorrow we will tell you some of the kinds of rags most in demand, and why.

Value of The Newspaper To The Advertiser

The following are the most important reasons for the value of the newspaper as an advertising medium:

1. It carries the news and is therefore always in DEMAND by ALL that read.
2. It reaches the people often—twice EVERY DAY.
3. Timely announcements can be made within a few hours from the time the advertiser conceives the idea, and while the interest of the public is still warm.
4. It concentrates the advertising in a certain locality and thoroughly.
5. The newspaper is the ONLY advertising medium that goes into the home. And the advertiser knows that it is wanted there because it is bought and paid for. The only advertising medium that stands a hundred percent chance to be read.

The morning paper reaches the home early in the day—before the family starts to do the day's buying—and the advertisements are consulted just when they are likely to serve as guides for the day's shopping. The evening paper, on the other hand, reaches the readers at the time when the day's work is done and when they have the most time and the inclination for reading.

AND MR. WOULD-BE ADVERTISER—if you would advertise only you don't know how to go about it, all that is necessary is to call H. & C. 176 and ask our Advertising Service Department to help you.

"LOVE NEVER DIES"

There is always public interest in matters concerning the stage, and the announcement that "Love Never Dies" the Bluebird Photoplay to be exhibited at the Opera House today relates to the romance of a dancer at the Paris Grand Opera House will carry an interest beyond the ordinary. Ruth Stonehouse plays the role of a girl who, from childhood, had expressed her greatest delight in dance. With her boy sweetheart playing "Spring Song" on his violin, the girl would dance all day when other children would be indulging in the games and sports of childhood. The little sweethearts were finally torn apart by cruel fate, only to meet again in later years under circumstance that formed the basis for an interesting picture-story of force and abiding charm. Franklin Farnum, Kingsley Benedict, little Dorothy Clark, Arthur Hoyt, Mrs. Witting, Wm. Canfield, Helen Wright, and Wadsworth Harris support Miss Stonehouse in unfolding the romantic tale.

SUNDAY SCHOOL. A Voyage On The Ship "Economy" Over Waves of White Goods

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 21, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John 1, 35-51
Memory Verses, 36-37—Golden Text
John 1, 43—Commentary Prepared by
Rev. D. M. Stearns.

One of the wonderful and most interesting things in this first chapter of John is the many different names of the Lord Jesus. In this respect it is somewhat like Rev. 1. He is called the Word of God, the Word made flesh, the Son of God, the Son of Man, the Lamb of God, the Messiah, the King of Israel, Jesus of Nazareth and other names, and each one bears a different revelation of Him to our souls. Let our heart cry ever be, "That I may know Him!" until we can say from the heart, "Yea, He is altogether lovely; this is my Beloved and this is my friend." (Phil. III, 10; Song v, 16). When we are fully occupied with Him all else will seem different. As John cried the next day, "Behold the Lamb of God!" two of John's disciples followed Jesus, and when He turned and said, "What seek ye?" they replied, "Where dwellest thou?" To which He answered, "Come and see!" This led to probably many hours with Him, for it was about the tenth hour (verses 35-39), which was not, as in the margin, two hours before night, but, as we count time, 10 a. m.

It is easily proved by John xix, 14, where, at the sixth hour, which must have been our 6 a. m., Jesus was still before Pilate, that John uses Roman time as we still do. Matthew, Mark and Luke use Jewish time, counting from 6 a. m. (Roman time) as the beginning of the day, so with them the third hour would be our 9 a. m., the sixth hour our 12 noon, and so on. Jesus was crucified at the third hour Jewish time, or 9 a. m. Roman time and our time. The darkness began at the sixth hour and continued till the ninth (Jewish time) or noon till 3 p. m. our time, when He died (Mark xv, 25, 33, 34; Matt. xxvii, 45, 46; Luke xxiii, 44). He met the woman at the well at 6 a. m. or 6 p. m. (John iv, 6), not at noon. Just as John counts the hours of the day as we do. What our Lord talked about in this interview we may imagine from the previous chapter (Luke xxiv), where we read of His conversation on the way to Emmaus, and in the upper room that same evening. We know that one of the two men on this occasion was Andrew, and we may safely conclude that the other was John himself (verses 40-42). For the evangelists have a way of not mentioning their own names when they are specially in the event.

We may also easily imagine that John found his brother James as quickly as Andrew found Simon. Are we as eager to bring others to Him, and does our talk about Him lead others away from ourselves to Him, as John's "Behold the Lamb of God," did? Is our motto "He must increase, but I must decrease?" (John iii, 30). The next day Jesus went Himself to find Philip of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter, and said to him, "Follow me." I cannot tell Himself to do it, but I am glad that He ever sought me, though I fear that He has occasion to say to me, as He did to Philip after those three years, "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me?" (John xiv, 9). We all seem to become acquainted with Him so slowly. His "Follow Me" to Philip (verses 43, 44) makes us think of His resurrection word to Peter in chapter xxi, 19, 22, and the application to us is so helpful.

Philip soon found a friend, saying to him, "We have found Him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." With a disdainful word concerning Nazareth Nathaniel was persuaded to come and see for himself, and soon he was heard exclaiming, "Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God; Thou art the King of Israel!" (verses 45-49). Perhaps the word of Jesus, "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee," had something to do with his confession. Only He who knoweth our down-sitting and uprising and all our ways could say such things to any one (Ps. cxxxix, 1-4). It will help us greatly if we remember that we have to do with Him who knows us so thoroughly and to whom all things are naked and open. Our Lord's next word to Nathaniel, "Thou shalt see greater things than these," I have often taken to myself as I have seen many of the wonderful things He has wrought for us and through us, and then have I pleaded again His words in Jer. xxxiii, 3.

The last verse in our lesson, which is an evident reference to Jacob's dream and vision at Bethel (Gen. xxviii, 12), makes me think that perhaps under that fig tree Nathaniel had been meditating upon this very thing, else why should our Lord refer to it? If my supposition is right, it is a confirmation of Ezek. xi, 5, "I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them." Only in this gospel is this man mentioned by this name, but he is supposed to be the Bartholomew of the other gospels, as he is always mentioned as such with Philip (Matt. x, 3; Mark iii, 15; Luke vi, 14). The last mention of him is in John xxi, 2, where he is seen as one of the seven.

White Sales Will Soon Occupy the Attention of The Shopper. Bon Voyage to All

With mines and U Boats acting up, This much consoleth me: Since I can't go to sea to sail, I'll go to sale to see.

New York, Jan. 19.—If you still have a little money left after Xmas and New Years don't worry, you won't have it after the January white sales.

In nautical tactics they speak of trimming the sails but in shopping tactics it is the sales that trim you. Fortunately however as you note the set of washable satin chemise in the privacy of your boudoir mirror you have the consolation of knowing that they trim you in more ways than one. January white sales have become as established a custom in all the best shops as well as furniture sales in August. I don't quite see how they have the face to call them white sales anymore however. The daring cut of some of the newest lingerie has certainly caused a blushing pinkness to prevail and the alleged white sale is no longer pure white or pure or white.

Things are even beginning to look a bit black for the white sale. What with all the present craze for black Chantilly lingerie, nobody would ever be afraid to go to bed in the dark if it was in one of the exquisite new black Chantilly nighties. They are almost as light as they are dark anyway, if it was in one of the exquisite new black Chantilly nighties. They are almost as light as they are dark anyway, if it was in one of the exquisite new black Chantilly nighties.

A streak of yellow appears often on the purest silk combinations and mauve, cerise, and Copenhagen disrupt the pink perfection of many a combination and chemise. For those that have pink silk earnings and only pink cotton yearnings the pink batiste lingerie this season is really lovely. I saw a bird of a pair of pink wash crepe pajamas dotted all over with blue birds and a pink crepe nightie covered with blue and white butterflies that was a decidedly fly little garment.

The white sales not only offers covering for your back but for your bed and board as well.

The linen sheets, hemstitched, embroidered, monogrammed and inset with laces are marked down sufficiently to tempt the tightest of tight wads and as for the table linen well no one can resist it.

Either your table linen must be chastely and elegantly plain or it must be profusely and lavishly ornate. You can see that at the very first glimpse at the white sales.

The war time Penelopes in Belgium and France are busy turning out gossamer laces and embroideries while their war lords are away. The results are table cloths, doilies, lunch cloths, napkins and luncheon sets that are fairy like in their fragile beauties. Over colored cloths of gleaming satin these lace and embroidery works of art show to advantage at luncheons and dinners, carrying out a set color scheme. Just to carry the drolling up of the festal board a step further, centerpieces of gold or silver gauze heavily embroidered in gold or silver threads are a brand new conceit.

For more conservative and dignified

taste the plain damask cloths bordered in a broad satin stripe and monogrammed in two places with a square monogram with plain satin stripes bordered monogrammed napkins to match cannot be improved upon. Of course an elaborate lace and embroidery piece is used in the center.

A very original and artistic housewife I know dresses her dining table up for breakfasts, home dinners and informal luncheons in natural colored crash cloths hemstitched and marked in Chinese monograms of blue with napkins done the same. MONDAY & TUESDAY

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out the poisons

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

On Age and Size Depends Proper Preparation of Potatoes

Most Common of Vegetable Has Wonderful Field as an Important Article of Food

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—The general use of potatoes in the average family and the better customs prevailing in many homes in preparing the tubers for food are, based on sound economic and dietetic reasons, according to specialists of the Office of Home Economics of the U. S. department of agriculture. Studies of the preparation and use of potatoes as food are reported in department of agriculture bulletin No. 468, recently issued.

Potatoes are easy to cook in a variety of ways. From the point of view of dietetics, they furnish starch in one readily digestible form, contain mineral substances of importance to the body, and—a fact less generally known—tend to make the tissues and fluids of the body alkaline, so counteracting the tendency of meats, eggs, fish and other foods to create acid conditions.

Since the body does its work when its condition is either neutral or slightly alkaline, potatoes, like most vegetables, perform an important function in the diet besides furnishing energy producing material. This scientific fact justifies the custom that is prevalent in many families of serving a goodly supply of potatoes or other vegetables with each helping of meat.

Potatoes, however, while a valuable addition to a mixed diet, alone are not suited to meet the needs of the body because of their poverty in proteins and fat. Of these latter important elements protein is furnished in meats, eggs, fish, milk, beans and similar foods, and fat in butter, bacon, table oils, and the fats and oils used in cookery.

Preparing Potatoes Which Have Been Kept Over From Winter

Greater care than commonly is exercised should be taken in peeling potatoes. Very often 20 per cent of the potato is pared away. This results not only in the waste of considerable potato but also in the loss of one of the most valuable portions of the tuber, since the soluble mineral salts are present in the material near the skin, which would be removed and thrown away. These salts can be preserved by a more careful removal of the skin, as by shallow paring or rubbing, and also by boiling or baking the potatoes in their jackets.

Paring before boiling, however, may be the most desirable method of cooking potatoes which through an undue exposure to light may have acquired a bitter taste, or those which have been kept until late in the spring since in this way more of the disagreeable flavor is eliminated. Such potatoes may also be soaked before cooking.

While these methods may be desirable with potatoes which have been exposed to light, they result in the loss of considerable food value without compensating advantages when applied to new or well-matured potatoes. If such potatoes are boiled after paring, they should be dropped into boiling water instead of being placed on the stove in cold water. By the latter method there is twice the loss of protein, or tissue-building elements, resulting from the former. The loss of mineral matter is about the same by each method. There is no loss of starch material in boiling unless portions of the tuber break off.

Practically the only loss when potatoes are baked in their skins is of the water which escapes as steam. The more or less common custom of pricking holes in the skin of baked potatoes or breaking them is explained by the fact that unless the steam which is formed inside the skin is allowed to escape it will change back into water and produce soggyness.

Special Considerations

Potatoes which have turned green and sprouting should be avoided.

HORSERADISH

Horseradish is a pernicious, vindictive, ill-natured vegetable that has to be watched every minute. Boiled beef is its only excuse.

Little is known of horseradish except that it grows in china pots and loafs around cheap lunch counters at midnight. Mustard, salt shakers, cat-snip and cab drivers are its boon companions.

The only thing to be said in favor of horseradish is that it doesn't get into plasters on people's backs and blister them all up. It will be pleased to choke you if it gets a chance, but it won't go out of its way to do harm, like mustard.

SIX DIFFERENT RULES FOR USING POWDER PUFFS

"Don't powder your nose if it's too big for your face. In that case powder the cheeks as well.

"If the face is slender, put powder near the ears. It makes for plumpness.

"If the face is fat, put the powder as far away from the ears as possible.

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out the poisons

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOW

Take a glass of Soda if you suffer from kidney trouble.

No man or woman who can regularly can make a mistake by using the kidneys occasionally, a well-known authority. Many uric acid which excites the kidneys become overworked, strain, get sluggish, and fail to do their duty. They get sick. Nephritis, neuritis, headache, liver troubles, nervousness, dizziness, and urinary disorders come from kidney trouble.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back aches, the urine is cloudy, offensive, or sediment, irregular of passage, stop eating meat and get a glass of Soda. Soda is a natural diuretic; it takes a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in the days the kidneys will get rid of the famous salts made from the grapes and lemon juice, which with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the uric acid so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and easy to use; makes a delightful beverage. Lithia-water drink which should be taken now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE LIGHTS OF BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Almost every visitor to New York from out of town believes that his visit would be incomplete without crossing the first of the great bridges which span the river and are highways between the boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn.

And wise these visitors are too, for it is a wonderful structure with its nets for pedestrians, trains, trolleys, and trucks.

I dearly love to cross this bridge in one of the trains at night when the view of the great lighted buildings on the New York shore presents a veritable fairyland.

But to me the most wonderful part of crossing this structure at night is when I can sit in front of the first car and watch the little lights along the posts to one side of the track. As long as the lights in front of him are green in color the motorman is able to keep right on. But when he finds that a light on one or two posts ahead is red he knows that another train is not far distant, and although the darkness or dense fog obscures it from view he knows by the lights just how far ahead of his train it is. Accidents are averted through these little lights, and they are a blessing to the motorman in his little cab, who knows that hundreds of passengers are trusting their lives to his care.

There are generally danger signals in our lives, friends, when we go too near anything which bodes us ill. Of course they are not quite so prominent as the changing lights before the trains, but they are there nevertheless, and it is our duty to recognize them.

One danger signal which never fails us is our best friend Conscience. A sudden little prick should be every bit as effective to us as the red light is to the motorman. Conscience never gets out of order, either; but it loses its effect after we have ignored it once or twice.

Of course I am more fortunate than you in having this constant reminder of my personal danger signal for every time I cross this bridge at night these little lights preach me their sermon and I listen carefully to my conscience for days afterwards.

Let us listen always to conscience, friends. If we do so we cannot make a mistake.

American Ship "Carolyn" Pioneer In New South American Service

South Americans Predict That Ships Will Ply Weekly Between Ports in New Business

By H. P. Robertson
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Rio De Janeiro, Jan. 18.—When the good American ship "Carolyn" pioneer of the new service established between Philadelphia and ports of Brazil and Argentina steamed into this harbor just now, Pan-American business prospects sighed a real sigh of relief.

The new service will go a long way toward relieving a tense transportation situation, in the opinion of shippers here. Bi-monthly, even weekly steamers are predicted for the near future.

After discharging her general cargo, about 5,000 tons, in this port the "Carolyn" turned her nose again southward for the ports of Santos and Buenos Aires. She will touch at Montevideo on later trips. The assurance of the immediate success of the new transportation enterprise is not based entirely on the situation created by the European war. Shippers here declare that American export trade with South American countries has grown tremendously in the last three years. It is declared that many Brazilian products are meeting difficulty in finding transportation for the United States, particularly coffee and rubber.

The "Carolyn" made the trip from Philadelphia in twenty-three days which is about the average speed of boats of her class.

By a curious coincidence the "Carolyn" was the first steamer to go through the Panama Canal after the opening of the "big ditch." Pioneer on the "Canal route," she is now pioneer in the new service to the ports of South America's east coast.

How The Landless Can Use Loan To Get Their Farms

Method Provided by Which Renter Can Get Farm Without Having the Fifty Per Cent Saved

By Frank R. Wilson
(Of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau)
(Written for the United Press)

Washington, Jan. 20.—The question has been frequently asked, "How can a renter who has not saved 50 per cent. of the purchase price of land make use of the Federal Farm Loan Act to get land of his own?"

The answer is, by means of a first mortgage given under the Farm Loan Act for 50 per cent. of the purchase price—provided this does not exceed 50 per cent. of the appraised value—and a second mortgage given to the former owner of the land or to a bank or private money lender, for the balance.

It must be borne in mind that the amount which can be borrowed under the Farm Loan Act is limited to 50 per cent. of the appraised value of the land, and this is written on the assumption that the tenant will not pay more for his land than it is actually worth, or in other words, its appraised value as contemplated under the Farm Loan Act.

To furnish a concrete example: Suppose John Smith, a renter, wants to buy 100 acres of land, valued at $50 an acre. The total purchase price would be $5,000, but John Smith has not the money to buy it.

Under the Farm Loan Act, Smith would be entitled to borrow $2,500 of the appraised value, if this appraised value should be the same as the purchase price. This would leave $2,500 to be handled by a second mortgage. The amount borrowed under the Farm Loan Act could be paid to the original owner of the land and a second mortgage for the balance, divided into ten annual payments.

Here is the way it would figure out: The first mortgage of $2,500 given under the Farm Loan Act would draw, as we say 5 1/2 per cent interest and would be paid off on the installment plan through a period of forty years by making annual payments of $155.95.

Now let us say that the second mortgage would draw 6 per cent. and could be arranged so as to be retired in ten years. The interest on this $2,500 mortgage at 6 per cent. would be $150 the first year and one tenth of the $2,500 would be $250.

Adding the interest and the one tenth annual payment would mean a payment of $400 on the second mortgage the first year. The second year payment would be $395 and the following payments through the ten years, to retire the second mortgage, both principal and interest, would be $370, $355, $340, $325, $310, $295, $280 and $265.

On top of these annual payments would be the $155.95 interest and amortization payments on the first mortgage to the Federal Land bank so that the total payments, interest and principal, on the two mortgages would begin at $555.95 and dwindle down to $420.95 the tenth year and after that only $155.95 each year.

If the terms of the second mortgage could be arranged for longer than ten years the required annual payments would be correspondingly reduced.

These payments are no greater than the average tenant pays for rent. The first year payment on both of these mortgages would amount to approximately $5.50 an acre. These would gradually reduce until the tenth year he would be paying $4.20 an acre and each year after that he would be paying only $1.55 per acre per year. Instead of being paid as rental this money is applied on the purchase price of the land.

The interest rates quoted in this instance are suggestions only and are not to be taken as an official statement. What rates will prevail under the Farm Loan Act

BILLY NINICH IS WINNER OVER LOUIS GAYLOR

The wrestling match at Curwensville last night was won by Billy Ninich, of Dallas, Texas. First fall was won in 43 minutes and 15 seconds, second fall in 12 minutes and 5 seconds. The first fall was won by the bar and chancery hold, the second fall by the toe hold. The wrestling was one of the best bouts ever held in Clearfield county, and was witnessed by a large crowd from Clearfield and Curwensville. The first preliminary was won by Charles Nippo over James Hile. The second preliminary was won by Gardner over Cornelius. The third preliminary between Nemo and Elmas was a draw.

Referee was Edwards from Clearfield, who did great work. Mr. Davis is arranging to get Charles Metro here and a good bout is expected when the manager of Ninich arranges to get the bout put on here in Clearfield.

The bout between Ninich and Gaylor was very fast and exciting, kept the people on edge all the time from start to finish.

Paying Doctor to Keep One Well Not a Fantastic Idea

We haven't yet learned to take advantage of the resources of civilization in anything like the extent we might. For instance, we wait until we get sick and then we pay the doctor to help us get well. It would be much more sensible to pay him to help us keep from getting sick.

Fantastic idea, you say. Not at all. It already is working in a large number of college communities. Right here at home, in the state university of Missouri and Kansas, for instance, says the Kansas City Star. In both institutions the pupil is charged a fee which is applied to safeguarding his health. In the University of Missouri the plan is still further developed so that the fee covers medical and surgical attendance.

The important point is that these universities and other schools are proving that health can be made much more of a community matter than had been supposed and that the wise thing to do is for groups to pay medical men to keep them well.

Switzerland Calls For Her Reserves Living In The U.S.

Claim New Mobilization is Only For Purpose of Relieving Those On Duty But May Fear Invasion

GERMANS REPORTED MASSING ON FRONTIER

Washington, Jan. 20.—(By United Press)—Swiss Minister Ritter, acting on instructions from his home government today issued orders to all Swiss consuls throughout America that all reservists of the Swiss corp leave for mobilization immediately. At the same time Minister Ritter was apprised of these orders he was advised that three additional Swiss army troops would be mobilized on January 24.

Dr. Ritter said that his government did not fear hostile moves by the belligerents on either side. The new troops are to relieve those who have been in mobilization camps for some time. London dispatches recently told of large troops of German soldiers massing on the Swiss frontier. Switzerland, however, does not fear any violation of neutrality.

More Wild Turkeys Placed On Mountains

Total of Sixteen Have Now Been Placed in Clearfield County

State Game Protector Hummel, today placed two fine wild turkey gobblers in Kennedy park game reserve yesterday. The birds were sent here by direction of the State Game Commission. These two turkeys made a total of sixteen placed in the Kennedy Park preserve within the past few weeks.

In addition to these turkeys a flock of five were put out on McGarvey ridge with Mr. Matthews, who agreed with the Game Commission to look after them during the winter.

Another flock of ten fine turkeys were sent to Ed Thompson at Bower and he will give them every care until the winter is over and they are able to provide for themselves, when they will be released in the woods of that section.

Clearfield county is on the Game Commission's list for ten more turkeys and these will be located in some other section of the county just as soon as they can be secured and sent here.

Opening Immense Coal Operation Near Here

Two Veins Will be Mined From Under Ringgold and Owens Farms

The new coal operation to be located on the old Ringgold and Owens farms on the hill back of Clearfield creek was started this week, quite a force of men under Superintendent Ross Lambert being engaged in the work.

The new company which is composed of T. Larry Elyre, of Chester; Clark Bros., of Glen Campbell and A. M. Liveright of this city, has leased the coal under the Ringgold, Owens and McGow farms and it is said will put in the largest operation in this section of the county.

The siding from the Pennsylvania railroad used by the late Henry Liveright in operating the top vein in this territory will be repaired and placed in commission to handle the coal from this operation. The lease under which the company will operate calls for the two remaining veins of coal in these hills and it is the purpose of the company to open and operate both veins at the same time. The lower vein will be operated from a drift and the other by means of a slope or incline.

It is also the intention of the company to erect a number of houses on the Ringgold farm to accommodate their men.

Progress Interviews Mottarn's Counsel

Raymond E. Brown is Chief Figure in Fight For Boy's Life

Raymond E. Brown, Esq., of Brookville, the attorney who defended Ward Mottarn, the Jefferson county boy whose sentence to death by electrocution has attracted state wide attention and may result in Pennsylvania abolishing the death penalty, was an interested onlooker at the doings in license court this week.

While here Mr. Brown discussed his plans for the saving of his client's life with a representative of the Progress and stated that a bill to abolish the death penalty would be introduced in the legislature at Harrisburg on Monday and a strenuous fight made to have it passed.

The Governor and Board of Pardons are on record as being in favor of this move and Mr. Brown feels sure the law will be passed and the death penalty superseded by imprisonment for life.

He has enlisted the aid of many newspapers and other powerful influences throughout the state in his fight and will attend the sessions of the legislature while the bill is pending and will address the committee in charge of the measure when a public hearing is had.

Alleged Murderer is Held For Court Trial

Commonwealth Expects to Prove Cherovala Killed Abe Horn

The habeas corpus hearing in the case of Ralph Cherovala, charged with the murder of Abe Horn at DuBois, October 21st last, was concluded yesterday afternoon. At the close of the Commonwealth's testimony, Attorney Woodward for the defense, moved that the prisoner be discharged for lack of evidence. The Commonwealth made strenuous objection to this motion and Judge Bell decided that he would hold the prisoner in the sum of $2,000 bail to answer to the charge at the coming term of criminal court. Cherovala was unable to furnish the requisite amount of bail and was taken to jail by Sheriff McCluskey.

Five in Room Too Many For East End Woman

Action in Divorce Discloses Bad Housing Conditions. There

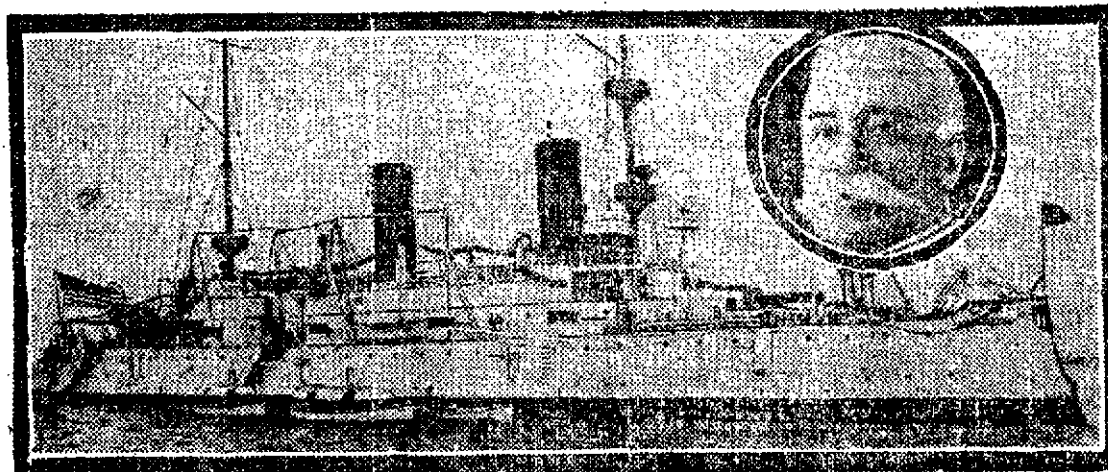

Tenement house conditions on New York's East Side don't have much on some East End houses if one were to judge from the complaint of a bride of little more than a year from that section filed in Prothonotary Moore's office this morning.

In the case mentioned the woman, who was married in August 1915, asks for a divorce from her husband on the ground that she was forced to leave his bed and board because he insisted on her sleeping in the same room with three other men, without a screen or other protection.

The injured wife not only asks for a divorce but support for herself and six months old child.

"YOU MAY FIRE WHEN YOU ARE READY, GRIDLEY"

This is the Olympia, on which the greatest American admiral, who died Tuesday in Washington, won his fame when he said to Captain Gridley, "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley." Gridley's fire opened the attack on the Spanish squadron off Manila, and it was followed by the destruction of eleven Spanish ships and the capture of the forts. The Philippine Islands were thereupon won to the United States.

She worked till pieces of exploding shells began to fall through the roof of the building she occupied. When the last call was made she fainted and was carried out by the firemen.

PEACE WORKERS IN CONFERENCE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—In response to a call of the American peace society an open conference of peace workers met at the Raleigh hotel here today to consider a definite program for international reorganization designed to secure a lasting peace at the conclusion of the present war. One of the plans considered was that proposed by Dr. James Brown Scott, official adviser to the state department and president of the American Institute of International Law. This plan calls for the setting up of judicial and conciliatory machinery for the settlement of international disputes on the lines proposed already by the American peace society, and indicated by the deliberations of the two Hague tribunals of 1899 and 1907.

OPPOSE DUTY ON SAMPLES

LATE TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

"STEALING NEWS"

New York, Jan. 20.—News pirates feasted this week on United Press cables from South America containing first news of the German commerce raider. In this four days' orgy Hearst's "International News Service" used the United Press cables in furnishing evening papers even to such obvious details that identity was certain, but to clinch the proof the United Press on Wednesday changed the name Yarrowdale to Yannondale.

Hearst's New York Journal printed the United Press stories without taking the trouble to rewrite them. They were identical, even to a typographical error in the story taken from the New York World, a United Press client. The New York Globe and the Boston Globe, Associated Press clients had the stories verbatim.

Investigation by the United Press disclosed the fact that the Associated Press did not tamper with the United Press cables or line in any way, but it did suffer a severe "beating." This was the first big demonstration of the United Press' excellent service in South America.

The United Press this week had the first news and furnished the stories of the great sea war to their clients hours ahead of the other agencies.

Dewey Laid To Rest With the Highest Military Honors

Governmental Machinery Stops For Brief Respite in Honor of Hero of Battle of Manila Bay

BUSINESS INSTITUTIONS SHOW RESPECT

Washington, Jan. 20.—The last tributes of respect were paid to Admiral George Dewey today. President Wilson, Secretary Daniels and other government officials, middies, jackies, society and civilians joined in the impressive ceremonies which began when "taps" were sounded at Arlington cemetery. At ten o'clock private services were held over the late admiral's body at his residence.

The body borne on a flag escorted by Annapolis Cadets and other military attaches was taken to the capitol and placed in the rotunda where the public might view the body. Chaplain Frazier of the Olympia, fighting parson, who was with the Admiral at Manila read the eulogy.

At noon nineteen cannons in this city were fired and other cannons throughout the country took up the farewell. From the capitol the funeral cortege moved up the streets of Washington to the city of the dead across the Potomac—Arlington National cemetery where the flag was sounded for the last time over the body. All government department offices closed today and Congress adjourned in honor of the American admiral. All private stores were closed for one hour and as the funeral cortege travelled the streets of Washington all street car traffic was suspended.

THE WASTE BASKET

There is a paper famine in this country, your individual help is needed to stop it. If you will watch this little box every day we will try to tell you how you can do that. We used to import 50 per cent of the rags and old paper used in making news paper, wrapping paper, writing paper, cardboard, all kinds of paper. The war has stopped that supply. In consequence, paper prices have gone up, in some instances 400 per cent.

Retail stores can help by posting notices asking customers not to insist on having parcels wrapped up if they can be conveniently handled otherwise. Customers can help by acting on the suggestion.

Housewives can help by saving rags and waste paper, bundling them up and selling them to the junk man. Tomorrow we will tell you some of the kinds of rags most in demand, and why.

Value of The Newspaper To The Advertiser

The following are the most important reasons for the value of the newspaper as an advertising medium:

1. It carries the news and is therefore always in DEMAND by ALL that read.
2. It reaches the people often—twice EVERY DAY.
3. Timely announcements can be made within a few hours from the time the advertiser conceives the idea, and while the interest of the public is still warm.
4. It concentrates the advertising in a certain locality and thoroughly.
5. The newspaper is the ONLY advertising medium that goes into the home. And the advertiser knows that it is wanted there because it is bought and paid for. The only advertising medium that stands a hundred percent chance to be read.

The morning paper reaches the home early in the day—before the family starts to do the day's buying—and the advertisements are consulted just when they are likely to serve as guides for the day's shopping. The evening paper, on the other hand, reaches the readers at the time when the day's work is done and when they have the most time and the inclination for reading.

AND MR. WOULD-BE ADVERTISER—if you would advertise only you don't know how to go about it, all that is necessary is to call H. & C. 176 and ask our Advertising Service Department to help you.

"LOVE NEVER DIES"

There is always public interest in matters concerning the stage, and the announcement that "Love Never Dies" the Bluebird Photoplay to be exhibited at the Opera House today relates to the romance of a dancer at the Paris Grand Opera House will carry an interest beyond the ordinary. Ruth Stonehouse plays the role of a girl who, from childhood, had expressed her greatest delight in dance. With her boy sweetheart playing "Spring Song" on his violin, the girl would dance all day when other children would be indulging in the games and sports of childhood. The little sweethearts were finally torn apart by cruel fate, only to meet again in later years under circumstance that formed the basis for an interesting picture-story of force and abiding charm. Franklin Farnum, Kingsley Benedict, little Dorothy Clark, Arthur Hoyt, Mrs. Witting, Wm. Canfield, Helen Wright, and Wadsworth Harris support Miss Stonehouse in unfolding the romantic tale.

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 21, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John 1, 35-51
Memory Verses, 36-37—Golden Text
John 1, 43—Commentary Prepared by
Rev. D. M. Stearns.

One of the wonderful and most interesting things in this first chapter of John is the many different names of the Lord Jesus. In this respect it is somewhat like Rev. 1. He is called the Word of God, the Word made flesh, the Son of God, the Son of Man, the Lamb of God, the Messiah, the King of Israel, Jesus of Nazareth and other names, and each one bears a different revelation of Him to our souls. Let our heart cry ever be, "That I may know Him!" until we can say from the heart, "Yea, He is altogether lovely; this is my Beloved and this is my friend." (Phil. III, 10; Song v, 16). When we are fully occupied with Him all else will seem different. As John cried the next day, "Behold the Lamb of God!" two of John's disciples followed Jesus, and when He turned and said, "What seek ye?" they replied, "Where dwellest thou?" To which He answered, "Come and see!" This led to probably many hours with Him, for it was about the tenth hour (verses 35-39), which was not, as in the margin, two hours before night, but, as we count time, 10 a. m.

It is easily proved by John xix, 14, where, at the sixth hour, which must have been our 6 a. m., Jesus was still before Pilate, that John uses Roman time as we still do. Matthew, Mark and Luke use Jewish time, counting from 6 a. m. (Roman time) as the beginning of the day, so with them the third hour would be our 9 a. m., the sixth hour our 12 noon, and so on. Jesus was crucified at the third hour Jewish time, or 9 a. m. Roman time and our time. The darkness began at the sixth hour and continued till the ninth (Jewish time) or noon till 3 p. m. our time, when He died (Mark xv, 25, 33, 34; Matt. xxvii, 45, 46; Luke xxiii, 44). He met the woman at the well at 6 a. m. or 6 p. m. (John iv, 6), not at noon. Just remember that John counts the hours of the day as we do. What our Lord talked about in this interview we may imagine from the previous chapter (Luke xxiv), where we read of His conversation on the way to Emmaus, and in the upper room that same evening. We know that one of the two men on this occasion was Andrew, and we may safely conclude that the other was John himself (verses 40-42). For the evangelists have a way of not mentioning their own names when they are specially in the event.

We may also easily imagine that John found his brother James as quickly as Andrew found Simon. Are we as eager to bring others to Him, and does our talk about Him lead others away from ourselves to Him, as John's "Behold the Lamb of God," did? Is our motto "He must increase, but I must decrease?" (John iii, 30). The next day Jesus went Himself to find Philip of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter, and said to him, "Follow me." I cannot tell Himself to do it, but I am glad that He ever sought me, though I fear that He has occasion to say to me, as He did to Philip after those three years, "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me?" (John xiv, 9). We all seem to become acquainted with Him so slowly. His "Follow Me" to Philip (verses 43, 44) makes us think of His resurrection word to Peter in chapter xxi, 19, 22, and the application to us is so helpful.

Philip soon found a friend, saying to him, "We have found Him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." With a disdainful word concerning Nazareth Nathaniel was persuaded to come and see for himself, and soon he was heard exclaiming, "Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God; Thou art the King of Israel!" (verses 45-49). Perhaps the word of Jesus, "Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee," had something to do with his confession. Only He who knoweth our down-sitting and uprising and all our ways could say such things to any one (Ps. cxxxix, 1-4). It will help us greatly if we remember that we have to do with Him who knows us so thoroughly and to whom all things are naked and open. Our Lord's next word to Nathaniel, "Thou shalt see greater things than these," I have often taken to myself as I have seen many of the wonderful things He has wrought for us and through us, and then have I pleaded again His words in Jer. xxxiii, 3.

The last verse in our lesson, which is an evident reference to Jacob's dream and vision at Bethel (Gen. xxviii, 12), makes me think that perhaps under that fig tree Nathaniel had been meditating upon this very thing, else why should our Lord refer to it? If my supposition is right, it is a confirmation of Ezek. xi, 5, "I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them." Only in this gospel is this man mentioned by this name, but he is supposed to be the Bartholomew of the other gospels, as he is always mentioned as such with Philip (Matt. x, 3; Mark iii, 15; Luke vi, 14). The last mention of him is in John xxi, 2, where he is seen as one of the seven.

A Voyage On The Ship "Economy" Over Waves of White Goods

White Sales Will Soon Occupy the Attention of The Shopper. Bon Voyage to All

With mines and U Boats acting up, This much consoleth me: Since I can't go to sea to sail, I'll go to sale to see.

New York, Jan. 19.—If you still have a little money left after Xmas and New Years don't worry, you won't have it after the January white sales.

In nautical tactics they speak of trimming the sails but in shopping tactics it is the sales that trim you. Fortunately however as you note the set of washable satin chemise in the privacy of your boudoir mirror you have the consolation of knowing that they trim you in more ways than one. January white sales have become as established a custom in all the best shops as well as furniture sales in August. I don't quite see how they have the face to call them white sales anymore however. The daring cut of some of the newest lingerie has certainly caused a blushing pinkness to prevail and the alleged white sale is no longer pure white or pure or white.

Things are even beginning to look a bit black for the white sale. What with all the present craze for black Chantilly lingerie, nobody would ever be afraid to go to bed in the dark if it was in one of the exquisite new black Chantilly nighties. They are almost as light as they are dark anyway, if not more so.

A streak of yellow appears often on the purest silk combinations and mauve, cerise, and Copenhagen disrupt the pink perfection of many a combination and chemise.

For those that have pink silk earnings and only pink cotton yearnings the pink batiste lingerie this season is really lovely. I saw a bird of a pair of pink wash crepe pajamas dotted all over with blue birds and a pink crepe nightie covered with blue and white butterflies that was a decidedly fly little garment.

The white sales not only offers covering for your back but for your bed and board as well.

The linen sheets, hemstitched, embroidered, monogrammed and inset with laces are marked down sufficiently to tempt the tightest of tight wads and as for the table linen well no one can resist it.

Either your table linen must be chastely and elegantly plain or it must be profusely and lavishly ornate. You can see that at the very first glimpse at the white sales.

The war time Penelopes in Belgium and France are busy turning out gossamer laces and embroideries while their war lords are away. The results are table cloths, doilies, lunch cloths, napkins and luncheon sets that are fairy like in their fragile beauties. Over colored cloths of gleaming satin these lace and embroidery works of art show to advantage at luncheons and dinners, carrying out a set color scheme. Just to carry the drolling up of the festal board a step further, centerpieces of gold or silver gauze heavily embroidered in gold or silver threads are a brand new conceit.

For more conservative and dignified

taste the plain damask cloths bordered in a broad satin stripe and monogrammed in two places with a square monogram with plain satin stripe bordered monogrammed napkins to match cannot be improved upon. Of course an elaborate lace and embroidery piece is used in the center.

A very original and artistic housewife I know dresses her dining table up for breakfasts, home dinners and informal luncheons in natural colored crash cloths hemstitched and marked in Chinese monograms of blue with napkins done the same. With these distinctive cloths she uses a service of blue and white Chinese Canton china.

Naturally she has them made to order or makes them herself and the white sales are showing wonderful bargains in linen crash and natural linen by the yard.

Certainly with its smashing prices crash by the yard it is no wonder every female these days hears and heeds the call of the white sale.

HORSERADISH

Horseradish is a pernicious, vindictive, ill-natured vegetable that has to be watched every minute. Boiled beef is its only excuse.

Little is known of horseradish except that it grows in china pots and loafs around cheap lunch counters at midnight. Mustard, salt shakers, catsup and cab drivers are its boon companions.

The only thing to be said in favor of horseradish is that it doesn't get into plasters on people's backs and blister them all up. It will be pleased to choke you if it gets a chance, but it won't go out of its way to do harm, like mustard.

SIX DIFFERENT RULES FOR USING POWDER PUFFS

Ora Cne, the unusual bridegroom of the "black wedding" today, who says any woman should be able to dress well and completely in four minutes, is an expert on face powder. Here are his tips to noses, etc.

"First look in the glass and discover the defects. 'Woman, know thyself,' was good dope.

"Don't powder your nose if it's too big for your face. In that case powder the cheeks as well.

"If the face is slender, put powder near the ears. It makes for plumpness.

"If the face is fat, put the powder as far away from the ears as possible.

"Don't try to imitate a marshmallow."

SAYS HOT WATER EACH DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out the poisons

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, spitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

On Age and Size Depends Proper Preparation of Potatoes

Most Common of Vegetable Has Wonderful Field of as an Important Article of Food

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—The general use of potatoes in the average family and the better customs prevailing in many homes in preparing the tubers for food are based on sound economic and dietetic reasons, according to specialists of the Office of Home Economics of the U. S. department of agriculture. Studies of the preparation and use of potatoes as food are reported in department of agriculture bulletin No. 468, recently issued.

Potatoes are easy to cook in a variety of ways. From the point of view of dietetics, they furnish starch in one readily digestible form, contain mineral substances of importance to the body, and—a fact less generally known—tend to make the tissues and fluids of the body alkaline, so counteracting the tendency of meats, eggs, fish and like foods to create acid conditions. Since the body does its work best when its condition is either neutral or slightly alkaline, potatoes, like most vegetables perform an important function in the diet besides furnishing energy producing material. This scientific fact justifies the custom that is prevalent in many families of serving a goodly supply of potatoes or other vegetables with each helping of meat.

Potatoes, however, while a valuable addition to a mixed diet, alone are not suited to meet the needs of the body because of their poverty in proteins and fat. Of these latter important elements protein is furnished in meats, eggs, fish, milk, beans and similar foods, and fat in butter, bacon, table oils, and the fats and oils used in cooking.

Preparing Potatoes Which Have Been

Kept Over From Winter

Greater care than commonly is exercised should be taken in peeling potatoes. Very often 20 per cent of the potato is pared away. This results not only in the waste of considerable potato but also in the loss of one of the most valuable portions of the tuber, since the soluble mineral salts are present in the material near the skin, which would be removed and thrown away. These salts can be preserved by a more careful removal of the skin, as by shallow paring or rubbing, and also by boiling or baking the potatoes in their jackets.

Paring before boiling, however, may be the most desirable method of cooking potatoes which through an undue exposure to light may have acquired a bitter taste, or those which have been kept until late in the spring since in this way more of the disagreeable flavor is eliminated. Such potatoes may also be soaked before cooking.

While these methods may be desirable with potatoes which have been exposed to light, they result in the loss of considerable food value without compensating advantages when applied to new or well-matured potatoes. If such potatoes are boiled after paring, they should be dropped into boiling water instead of being placed on the stove in cold water. By the latter method there is twice the loss of protein, or tissue-building elements, resulting from the former. The loss of mineral matter is about the same by each method. There is no loss of starchy material in boiling unless portions of the tuber break off. Practically the only loss when potatoes are baked in their skins is of the water which escapes as steam. The more or less common custom of pricking holes in the skin of baked potatoes or breaking them is explained by the fact that unless the steam which is formed inside the skin is allowed to escape it will change back into water and produce sogginess.

Special Considerations
Potatoes which have turned green and sprouting —have present a considerable quantity of acrid, acrid poisonous substances though not dangerous in the quantities ordinarily met with, give a disagreeable flavor. It is better, therefore, to avoid such potatoes and cut out greed or sprouting tubers.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOW

Take a glass of Soda if you suffer from kidney trouble

No man or woman who can regularly can make a mistake by taking the kidneys occasionally, a well-known authority. Many uric acid which excites the kidneys become overworked, strain, get sluggish, fail to do their work and poison the blood. Then we get sick. Nausea, vomiting, headache, liver troubles, nervousness, dizziness, and urinary disorders come from kidney trouble.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, the urine is cloudy, offensive, sediment, irregular of passage, stop eating meat and get a glass of Soda. Soda is a natural diuretic; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in the days the kidneys will get rid of the famous salts made from the grapes and lemon juice, which with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the uric acid so it no longer causes irritation thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive and easy to use; makes a delightful beverage. Lithia-water drink which should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE LIGHTS OF BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Almost every visitor to New York from out of town believes that his visit would be incomplete without crossing the first of the great bridges which span the river and are highways between the boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn.

And wise these visitors are too, for it is a wonderful structure with its nets for pedestrians, trains, trolleys, and trucks.

I dearly love to cross this bridge in one of the trains at night when the view of the great lighted buildings on the New York shore presents a veritable fairyland.

But to me the most wonderful part of crossing this structure at night is when I can sit in front of the first car and watch the little lights along the posts to one side of the track. As long as the lights in front of him are green in color the motorman is able to keep right on. But when he finds that a light on one or two posts ahead is red he knows that another train is not far distant, and although the darkness or dense fog obscures it from view he knows by the lights just how far ahead of his train it is. Accidents are averted through these little lights, and they are a blessing to the motorman in his little cab, who knows that hundreds of passengers are trusting their lives to his care.

There are generally danger signals in our lives, friends, when we go too near anything which bodes us ill. Of course they are not quite so prominent as the changing lights before the trains, but they are there nevertheless, and it is our duty to recognize them.

One danger signal which never fails us is our best friend Conscience. A sudden little prick should be every bit as effective to us as the red light is to the motorman. Conscience never gets out of order, either; but it loses its effect after we have ignored it once or twice.

Of course I am more fortunate than you in having this constant reminder of my personal danger signal for every time I cross this bridge at night these little lights preach me their sermon and I listen carefully to my conscience for days afterwards.

Let us listen always to conscience, friends. If we do so we cannot make a mistake.

American Ship "Carolyn" Pioneer In New South American Service

South Americans Predict That Ships Will Ply Weekly Between Ports in New Business

By H. P. Robertson
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Rio De Janeiro, Jan. 18.—When the good American ship "Carolyn" pioneer of the new service established between Philadelphia and ports of Brazil and Argentina steamed into this harbor just now, Pan-American business prospects sighed a real sigh of relief.

The new service will go a long way toward relieving a tense transportation situation, in the opinion of shippers here. Bi-monthly, even weekly steamers are predicted for the near future.

After discharging her general cargo, about 5,000 tons, in this port the "Carolyn" turned her nose again southward for the ports of Santos and Buenos Aires. She will touch at Montevideo on later trips. The assurance of the immediate success of the new transportation enterprise is not based entirely on the situation created by the European war. Shippers here declare that American export trade with South American countries has grown tremendously in the last three years. It is declared that many Brazilian products are meeting difficulty in finding transportation for the United States, particularly coffee and rubber.

The "Carolyn" made the trip from Philadelphia in twenty-three days which is about the average speed of boats of her class.

By a curious coincidence the "Carolyn" was the first steamer to go through the Panama Canal after the opening of the "big ditch." Pioneer on the "Canal route," she is now pioneer in the new service to the ports of South America's east coast.

How The Landless Can Use Loan To Get Their Farms

Method Provided by Which Renter Can Get Farm Without Having the Fifty Per Cent Saved

By Frank R. Wilson
(Of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau)
(Written for the United Press)

Washington, Jan. 20.—The question has been frequently asked, "How can a renter who has not saved 50 per cent. of the purchase price of land make use of the Federal Farm Loan Act to get land of his own?"

The answer is, by means of a first mortgage given under the Farm Loan Act for 50 per cent. of the purchase price—provided this does not exceed 50 per cent. of the appraised value—and a second mortgage given to the former owner of the land or to a bank or private money lender, for the balance.

It must be borne in mind that the amount which can be borrowed under the Farm Loan Act is limited to 50 per cent. of the appraised value of the land, and this is written on the assumption that the tenant will not pay more for his land than it is actually worth, or in other words, its appraised value as contemplated under the Farm Loan Act.

To furnish a concrete example: Suppose John Smith, a renter, wants to buy 100 acres of land, valued at $50 an acre. The total purchase price would be $5,000, but John Smith has not the money to buy it.

Under the Farm Loan Act, Smith would be entitled to borrow $2,500 of the appraised value, if this appraised value should be the same as the purchase price. This would leave $2,500 to be handled by a second mortgage. The amount borrowed under the Farm Loan Act could be paid to the original owner of the land and a second mortgage for the balance, divided into ten annual payments.

Here is the way it would figure out: The first mortgage of $2,500 given under the Farm Loan Act would draw down as say 5 1/2 per cent interest and would be paid off on the installment plan through a period of forty years by making annual payments of $155.95.

Now let us say that the second mortgage would draw 6 per cent. and could be arranged so as to be retired in ten years. The interest on this $2,500 mortgage at 6 per cent. would be $150 the first year and one tenth of the $2,500 would be $250.

Adding the interest and the one tenth annual payment would mean a payment of $400 on the second mortgage the first year. The second year payment would be $395 and the following payments through the ten years, to retire the second mortgage, both principal and interest, would be $370, $355, $340, $325, $310, $295, $280 and $265.

On top of these annual payments would be the $155.95 interest and amortization payments on the first mortgage to the Federal Land bank so that the total payments, interest and principal, on the two mortgages would begin at $555.95 and dwindle down to $420.95 the tenth year and after that only $155.95 each year.

If the terms of the second mortgage could be arranged for longer than ten years the required annual payments would be correspondingly reduced.

These payments are no greater than the average tenant pays for rent. The first year payment on both of these mortgages would amount to approximately $5.50 an acre. These would gradually reduce until the tenth year he would be paying $4.20 an acre and each year after that he would be paying only $1.55 per acre per year. Instead of being paid as rental this money is applied on the purchase price of the land.

The interest rates quoted in this instance are suggestions only and are not to be taken as an official statement. What rates will prevail under the Farm Loan Act

BILLY NINICH IS WINNER OVER LOUIS GAYLOR

The wrestling match at Curwensville last night was won by Billy Ninich, of Dallas, Texas. First fall was won in 43 minutes and 15 seconds, second fall in 12 minutes and 5 seconds. The first fall was won by the bar and chancery hold, the second fall by the toe hold. The wrestling was one of the best bouts ever held in Clearfield county, and was witnessed by a large crowd from Clearfield and Curwensville. The first preliminary was won by Charles Nippo over James Hile. The second preliminary was won by Gardner over Cornelius. The third preliminary between Nemo and Elmas was a draw.

Referee was Edwards from Clearfield, who did great work.

Mr. Davis is arranging to get Charles Metro here and a good bout is expected when the manager of Ninich arranges to get the bout put on here in Clearfield.

The bout between Ninich and Gaylor was very fast and exciting, kept the people on edge all the time from start to finish.

Paying Doctor to Keep One Well Not a Fantastic Idea

We haven't yet learned to take advantage of the resources of civilization in anything like the extent we might. For instance, we wait until we get sick and then we pay the doctor to help us get well. It would be much more sensible to pay him to help us keep from getting sick.

Fantastic idea, you say. Not at all. It already is working in a large number of college communities. Right here at home, in the state university of Missouri and Kansas, for instance, says the Kansas City Star. In both institutions the pupil is charged a fee which is applied to safeguarding his health. In the University of Missouri the plan is still further developed so that the fee covers medical and surgical attendance.

The important point is that these universities and other schools are proving that health can be made much more of a community matter than had been supposed and that the wise thing to do is for groups to pay medical men to keep them well.
